TWIN BROTHERS

Amos and Cyrus Lape United After 39 Years.

Pittsburg, July 27.—Amos and Cyrus Lape, born together in Blacklick, Indiana county, 39 years ago, are acquainted for the first time. On account of the mother's death in giving birth to them, the twins were separated to live with different families, which lost track of each other. The reunion of the two brothers now being celebrated was brought about by a mistake. A stranger who ran up on Amos at work in Export exclaimed:

"Hello, Cy, what are you doing in Export?" Amos demurred. "But I'm not Cy. I am Amos Lape. I have heard that I had a twin brother named Cyrus, but I never saw him. Do you know him?" "Well, rather," said the stranger, "he's a neighbor of mine at Dunbar (Fayette county). I'll lead you to him," and he did.

The Servant Problem.

In every gathering of housewives the uppermost theme is servants and their troubles with them. This is not a local difficulty, it is all-pervading. Until housekeepers succeed in forming an organization, compact and binding, there will be no abatement of the trouble. But if a society could be formed with reasonable rules and regulations, from which every member would be subject to expulsion and ostracism when found guilty of breaking the rules, a great relief could be expected. Trifling, unreliable and dishonest servants could be reported to the head of the society and all of its members warned of their shortcomings, and if members of the society were subject to expulsion for enticing away, directly, or indirectly, the servants of another, there might be more relief. Much of the servant problem is probably due to the lack of business-like organization among the employers of servants.—Exchange.

The Woman to Marry.

Is she not the very sparkle and sunshine of life?—a woman who is happy because she can't help it—whose smile even the coldest sprinkle of misfortune cannot dampen. Men make a terrible mistake when they marry for beauty, or for talents, or for style. The sweetest wives are those who possess the magic secret of being contented under any circumstances rich or poor, high or low, it makes no difference; the bright little fountain of joy bubbles up just as musically in their hearts. Do they live in a log cabin? The fire on its humble hearth becomes brighter than the gilded chandelier in an Aladdin palace.

Where is the stream of life so dark and unpropitious that the sun shine of a happy face falling on the turbid tide will not awaken an answering gleam?—Exchange.

STORY OF A HEN.

Swallows a Diamond Worth $500 at Perryville.

The highest price hen in Kentucky was in Perryville last week at the home of the Rev. William Overstreet. For just one hour she was worth exactly $503. Then the market of this particular hen "broke" as they say in the bucket shop, and at one stroke, fell $500 which, so far as can be learned, is a record for Perryville. The hen swallowed a $500 diamond ring belonging to Mrs. Overstreet. The ring, with others less valuable, was lying on a table on the back porch of the Overstreet house. The old hen looked the jewels over, and with the eye of a connoisseur and the taste of a Savarin, picked out the real thing and swallowed it. There was a hue and cry when the loss was discovered. All the hens were under suspicion, and Mr. Overstreet started an investigation. The fourth hen he picked up proved to be the culprit.

He could feel the ring in her craw. Mrs. Overstreet with her scissors solved the problem. She cut a hole in the craw, took out the ring, sewed the craw up again and the hen is as well now as she ever was before. —Danville Messenger.

JOSEPH THOMAS

Inventor of Hoopskirts Dies at His Home in Hoboken.

Hoboken, N. J.—Joseph Thomas, inventor of hoopskirt, and the first sewing machine, died several days ago at his home in this city, aged eighty-three years. Thomas also invented a machine in use all over the world, for making derby hats, a self-lighting lamp, a machine for making sulphur matches, and a braiding machine.

His fame, naturally, will rest upon the hoopskirt, so popular among the women of the Civil war period. Although his many inventions brought millions to others. Thomas died in only comfortable circumstances. He had no greed for money, but a passion for working out his ideas.

A pathetic feature of Thomas' death was the fact that his wife died, unknown to him, ten days ago. In the last hours of his illness he called for her time and again. The Thomases were known as Hoboken's ideal couple. He often said that it was his wife's suggestions that led him to make the first hoopskirt. He began disposing of them at $300 a dozen, but could not turn them out fast enough, so he sold the patent to a Philadelphia firm for $50,000. The firm made millions of dollars out of Thomas' idea. The popularity of the skirt extended to Europe.

Thomas' sewing machine was made in conjunction with George Bless. Neither man made much money out of his patent, as they were employed as draughtsmen by a company formed to perfect the sewing machine. The modern sewing machine is merely the result of improvements on their patent.

GIRL OF 18.

Youngest Graduate of University at Ann Arbor.

Probably the youngest person ever to win a Master of Arts degree from any university in the United States, at least for the last quarter of a century, was Dorothea Jones from Harrisburg, Pa., who took her work and passed her examination for the degree before she was eighteen years old. At the Michigan University a student must be sixteen years old before they may enter the university for regular work, but when Miss Jones presented herself for entrance a year ago last fall she came with three years advance credit, thus allowing her to enter the senior class at sixteen. She had earned the credits at a private school in Carlisle, Pa.

GRAFT PROBE

In I. C. Car Repair Cases Goes On

Chicago, July 26.—Despite the death of Ira G. Rawn, former president of the Monon road, who was to have been the chief witness, taking of testimony in the Illinois Central car repair cases was resumed today before Thomas Taylor, Master in Chancery. It is part of the present purpose of the hearing to determine whether any money is due the road from officers and employees involved in the car repair contracts and the amount.

The wealth of the Rawn estate today is estimated at $2,000,000 by the head of a detective agency who has been making an investigation into the affairs of the former railroad man in the interests of the Illinois Central road.
